

The aim of the excursion was to prepare and present short texts in Russian about these interesting monuments situated just outside Zadar. Although the historical and cultural monuments on the coast are better known due to their location, inland Dalmatia has a lot to offer and has lately been enriching Croatian tourism. The students briefly took up the roles of tourist guides by unveiling their homeland to their colleagues, who were 'playing' Russian tourists. Each traveler discovered something new about his or her region, and we have proven once more that together we can realize important ideas and have fun in the process.
