THE ELECTRONIC IDENTITY OF THE
UNIVERSITY OF ZADAR

Electronic identity is a collection of data about an individual that is used for the purposes of authentication (identity check) and authorisation (right of access check). Electronic identity can be used to access services or resources that are enabled by the University of Zadar (e.g. Merlin, Bachelor and Master Theses Repository, scientific papers database), the Ministry of Science, Education, and Sports (e.g. Croatian Scientific Bibliography), public administration (e.g. E-citizens) and other organisations that require AAI account registration.

The user has the obligation to protect confidentiality of the data that proves his/her identity (a password) and must never share his/her user account with other persons.

In case of loss or misuse of the data used to prove identity, the AAI account user has the obligation to inform the University of Zadar.

The given electronic identity is valid until the user's status at the university expires (student's status, lifelong education programme attendee, employee, external associate, guest).

The University of Zadar recommends the change of the given password at this address:
