ABOUT US

Pedagogy has participated in the development of Faculty of humanities and social sciences in Zadar from its beginnings to the end, and is one of the constituents of the University of Zadar. Along with the scientific research work it is recognizable for acquirement of teaching competences and the study of pedagogy. In this view, it has passed more developmental stages.

From the Chair foundation, with the continuous pedagogical training of all the teaching studies students, the study of pedagogy was introduced beginning with the academic year 1961/62. Three year double-major study of pedagogy as a second major was then combined with the main subject. The Chair of Pedagogy grows into Department of pedagogy in the academic year 1996/97, consisting of the Chair of General pedagogy and the Chair of Didactic with methodic. In that time the Department of Pedagogy was one of seven departments that were inheriting seminars in the year 1959/60.

With the raising demand for pedagogues in the immediate practice, in the academic year 1975/76, two-year part-time study for School pedagogues, as a main major, was introduced. Graduates of Higher pedagogical school and Pedagogical academy had the possibility of enrolling to III. and IV. year of this pedagogy study, and it began with enrolling to the V. semester. Enrolment on a part-time study for a school pedagogue lasted for three academic years. In that time, the study of pedagogy was being extended from three to four years. In the academic year 1976/77 the first generation of students enrolled to studying pedagogy as a main major.

The study of pedagogy had been gradually profiling in program. All of the programmes then, as the later programmes of study of pedagogy, were of general type. Only in academic year 1979/80 the first generation of students in the four-year study of pedagogy chose between two courses when enrolling to the IV. year: Preschool pedagogy and School pedagogy. In the next year, the integral study of general profile was being introduced again.

Better staff opportunities at the Department of pedagogy enabled anew change of teaching plan and the concept of studying, so from academic year 1982/83 pedagogy was being studied as a one-major four-year study of general orientation. By enrolling the first-year students, double-major pedagogy was abandoned, so the last generation of the double-major study graduated their fourth year in academic year 1984/85.

Academic year 1993/94 brings a final turning point in the development of pedagogy at the Faculty of humanities and social sciences in Zadar. By bringing back double-major study of general orientation, final changes in the teaching plan and programme of pedagogy were simultaneously introduced. Since the double-major combination of pedagogy along with the second subject was well accepted in the immediate practice, from the academic year 1996/97 all study groups were working by the new double-major programme that allowed combining with any other double-major study group freely.

After the foundation of the new Croatian university in 2002, in the cradle of the oldest university in Croatia, the university Department of pedagogy replaced the faculty Department of pedagogy. Right after the organizational restructuring, in accordance to the Bologna reform carried out in higher education in Croatia, the big structural changes took its place and the four-year double-major graduation study of pedagogy was replaced by the three-year undergraduate and two-year graduate double-major study of pedagogy. In the academic year 2014/2015, the three-year postgraduate doctoral study „Quality in education“ has been initiated at the Department of pedagogy.

The Department of Pedagogy hosted a great number of scientific and professional congresses. The result of numerous and various research conducted by the Department members is a great number of published books, discussions and articles varying in different pedagogical areas.

Currently there are 12 teachers at the department, of which eight are teaching and research professors. The department members participate in the work of great number of professional committees of university, as well as of different institutions; they are editors of various books and periodicals. Furthermore, they participate in the work of numerous internal and foreign scientific and professional congresses, and are active in numerous skills organizations. Fruitful work of Zadar's university pedagogues is highlighted by whole series of awards and acknowledgments. Department teaching staff also participates in great number of scientific-research projects.

During the teaching activities, students are also frequently encouraged to participate in the research approach, and are involved in the practical and field work.

From the academic year 2014/2015, the Department has constituted an Alumni Club of Department of pedagogy.

The department also broadens its international cooperation by concluding interinstitutional agreements within the framework of mobility programmes, teachers' participation in study tours, as well as by organisation of guest lecturers, and incoming teachers and students mobility, and encouraging students for outgoing mobility.

Student mobility

The study programme of pedagogy enables students' horizontal and vertical mobility to other Croatian as well as foreign universities. As the student has studied social subjects and humanities at the undergraduate study programme, he/she has the possibility of horizontal mobility to related undergraduate study programmes, and considering the professional and scientific orientation of the graduate study, he/she is eligible to acquire professional competences in pedagogy as well as a scientific training at a postgraduate study in order to obtain a doctorate in pedagogy, that is, acquire a scientific education and training in other postgraduate study programmes, specialist or doctoral.
