Conditions for permission to take the exam	•Regular class attendance Student attendance, preparation, and active participation in class are required. You can be absent max. 3 classes per semester, with no questions asked. •Reflection papers Each student will send a reflection paper at least 6 times during the semester. Reflection papers should be 500-700 words, address themes from all the assigned readings for that day (students may choose to focus on one more than another),and present the student's views on issues raised by our authors. Students may summarize concepts, arguments, or debates, although the objective of the paper should be to raise questions and to engage in constructive criticism. Reflection papers are due the evening before the class (i.e. by Tuesday 19h). No late submissions will be accepted. •Oral presentation Each student will hold at least one presentation per semester on the assigned seminar readings for that day.

Course description	What is identity? How are identities constructed? How do different identities relate to one another? This course investigates these questions through a discussion of ethnicity, class, race, gender, and sexuality, in comparative perspective. We begin with theoretical approaches to identity (structuralism, phenomenology), and continue by applying these approaches to identity formation around the globe. This will include topics as diverse as construction of European identity in the Eurovision song contest, public display of masculinity in Bali, or consumerism in postsocialist Hungary. The main objective of the course is to enable students to critically reflect on various theoretical concepts of identity and politics of identification. The course will cover basic concepts, issues and controversies of identity theory and the ways in which they are articulated in contemporary social sciences.

Calculation of final grade	•25% class attendance and reflection papers •25 % oral presentation •50 % final research project Final research project should analytically address one specific case of identity construction. This can include subcultures, social movements, spatial and regional identities, and traditional categories studied in the course (gender, class, ethnicity). However, you are free to choose less conventional cases of identity construction! The paper should be 3,000–3,500 words long and based on students’ own interests and experience. Students should choose the topic of their final research project and discuss it with the instructor by Week 7.
